1. Alive With Energy Clinic will not release your personal health information to anyone except yourself without your written consent or unless such release of information is mandated by law.
2. The office policy at Alive With Energy Clinic is to communicate with each patient either in person, by phone (as provided by the patient) or occasionally by written mail. You have the right to choose which method of communication you prefer and limit certain methods of communication.
3. The nature of care at Alive With Energy Clinic is an “open-door” adjusting environment. This means that during the course of routine care the door to the treatment room may be left open. Procedures such as patient histories, examinations, and report of findings are completed in a private, confidential setting. If you choose not to be adjusted in an “open-door” environment, other arrangements will be made. Your decision will have no adverse effect on your care or on your relationship with the doctor or any staff member.
